

Post Conference Wrap-up

By Charles Bausch

October marks the end of the conference season for the Nebraska Rural Water Association. Once again I'd say this conference season was a success. We had many great classes and good hands-on training at our Utility EXPO. I would like to thank everyone that attended our conferences and hope you all enjoyed the sessions as much as I did.

As for conference planning this is a task that never ends. The Annual Conference is still many months away but I thought I'd give you all a little insight into what is in the works for next year. As always we will have our regulatory updates from all our primacy agencies along with what's new in metering and wireless technology. There will be topics that cover backflow and backflow prevention along with water conservation topics to help everyone learn better water management practices. There will be topics that will help us with our daily routine maintenance of our water and sewer systems along with ways to deal professionally with your board and public. These are just a few topics that we will cover at our Annual Conference in March.

Once again I hope everyone enjoyed our conferences this year and I look forward to seeing everyone next year in Columbus.
